1. Traffic Situation and Airlines Recovery

- 14,523 flights on Tuesday 22 September, (-8% with -860 flights compared to Tuesday 8 September). This is 43% of 2019 traffic levels. Based on a 7-day moving average, the decrease is -54.6% compared to 2019 which is now degrading since early September due to the increase of States’ restrictions and the removal of flights by almost all airlines, with WizzAir removing the highest number of flights (-122 flights).

- Friday 28 August remains the peak day (18,802 flights) when traffic levels reached -49.2% of 2019 levels for the first time since 18 March.
News from key worldwide organizations:

- IATA reports ticketing globally for December 2020 is at 21% of December 2019 levels.
- OAG reports global seat capacity remains down 56%.
- ICAO Secretary General announced global passenger traffic down 69% year-on-year Jan-August with global losses to the industry between $350 and $400 billion.

Overall situation against EUROCONTROL traffic scenarios:

- On 14 September, EUROCONTROL issued updated traffic scenarios to take account of the impact of individual and uncoordinated national restrictions, quarantine requirements and testing measures, which are primarily in accordance with National epidemiological assessments and National health measures. Often, these measures are announced with very short notice. This ‘uncoordinated approach’ by States has led to much confusion and eroded passenger confidence.

- Under its new “Current Status Scenario”, the total number of flights expected in Europe is anticipated to be 55% lower than in 2019, a drop of 6 million fewer flights, or a further 1 million reduction in European flights than previously anticipated.

- For the month of September (until Tuesday 22 September), the traffic is in line with the traffic scenario with -54%. Current evolution indicates that the scenarios might be optimistic for October onward.

European Airlines:

- Ryanair was, by far, the airline with the highest number of flights with 1,125 flights on Tuesday 22 September showing a decrease of -3% compared to Tuesday 8 September (-32 flights).
